BACKGROUND

Historically, Technical and Vocational Education and Training has taken a distinct second place when it comes to funding and policy focus. This is despite the fact that worldwide, 80% of all job training occurs in this sector. It is also despite evidence that Technical and Vocational Education and Training is considered the most applicable form of education capable of meeting the vast and growing scale of national education and training needs, that we are faced with as a nation.

INTRODUCTION

A first of its kind in Namibia, the Skills Expo will become an annual platform where industry role players and reputable training institutions can collaborate in informing young Namibians about technical and vocational career options, open to them.
